

The trick to French doors

Get the most from your insulation

Upgrade to a tile shower

Well-framed floors

Simple scaffolding

The rudiments of routers

Tips for PVC pipe

MASTER CARPENTER
Curved trim

JANUARY 2004 NO.160
www.finehomebuilding.com

U.S. $7.99/Canada $8.99

Your table is ready...

Dining spaces can be as diverse as the meals that are served in them. From a turkey club in a dinette booth to a venison haunch on a baronial table, the style of the room is as much a part of the seasoning as the spices.

Separate but not exiled. This cozy dining room was the result of a major renovation by CG&S Design/Build. Architect Stewart Davis kept the connections between the dining area and the kitchen strong with a unified color and sightlines but divided the space with an arched doorway that holds display shelving. Photo by Greg Hursley/Through the Lens Mgmt.

Outside at the flip of a switch. This dining area is separated from the elements by a service-station garage door fitted with insulated glass. When the weather is right, the door slides up and dinner is served outdoors. Design and photo by Paul Masi.

Windows lend a sense of place. A creative arrangement of small windows and deep, well-lighted valances above makes this dining alcove bright and snug. Design by Thomas Buckingham & Associates; photo by Eric Roth.